MANY GREET HIM

A LARGE NUMBER CALL ON THE

Mr. Harrison Much Affected by the News of Justice Matthews' Death-While-Cabinet Meeting Held Today-White House Notes.

The President was conversing with Semtor Mitchell of Oregon this morning when Secretary Halford communicated the tidings of the death of Judge Matthews. There had been quite a rush of callers a few minutes before, but upon the receipt of the news the President degled admission to applicants for half an hour er so. He wiated to Senator Mitchell that he had known the dead jurist long and intimately, and had often been associated with him in known the dead jurist long and intimately, and had often been associated with him in a legal capacity.

Among those who called this morning on the President were Senators Farwell, Mitchell, Allison and Judge Cole, lowa; ex-Senator McDonald, Indiana; Representatives Houk, Butterworth, Perkins, Holmes, McKenna, Hitt, Breckinridge and Turner; Colonel H. C. Parsons and Judge Van Nees of Virginia, Professor Gallaudet of the Columbia Institution for the Deaf and Dumb, John P. Haines, who was a Presidential elector for New Jersey in the last campaign, and Secretary Auson McCook and his brother, the former Governor of Arizona Territory. Major Pitkin, ex-Marshal of Louisiana, headed a delegation from the land of the grandissimes, among the number being Judge Beattle, Dr. A. Dupericur, H. Dudley Coleman, Pearl Wight and H. C. Minor, and before they left the party gave the President a few tips about Republicans in their State.

All the members of the Cabinet were present at the meeting to-day, but the session did not last over an hour. Postmaster-General Wanamaker was the first to leave and was quickly followed by the Secretary of the Navy.

Just as the latter came down stairs from the Cabinet room he encountered a young lady, whose hair was the color Titians

Just as the latter came down stairs from the Cabinet room be encountered a young lady, whose hair was the color Titians loved to paint. An inquiry was made for the white horse, and at that moment the equipage of Secretary Tracy drew up at the front door of the Executive Mansion.

equipage of Secretary Tracy drew up at the front door of the Executive Manslon. It was drawn by a span of horses—a bay and a white—and the girl smiled sickly.

Punctuality is a characteristic of Secretary Nob'e, especially as regards Cabinet meetings, and since his selection as one of the Presinent's advisers, he has invariably been the first arrival at the White House on Cabinet days. In order to keep his record intact, to-day he had to hurry a mob of office-seckers out of his office, and the method he adopted was a novel but effective one. One persistent applicant wanted the Secretary to look at his papers and give him a definite answer. In reply, the Secretary spoke out so that all presencould hear him and said: "If I stand here talking all day it will necessitate my staying up at night to finish my work." The hint was taken by the crowd, and the room was cleared as if by magic.

"Even at the risk of shocking some of my Wisconsiu friends and constituents," said Senator Spooner, "I think it would be a good idea to strike off the first letter of Adam Badeau's name. His opposition to the confirmation of Colonel Fred. Grant will not have much weight with Senators, and especially since his action in regard to the memoirs of General Grant. I don't think there will be a failure to confirm either Whitelaw Reid or Fred. Grant, as both nominations have been favorably reported by the committee to whom they were referred."

LATE DEPARTMENT NEWS.

Chaplain Hibben of the navy has been some time been engaged in preparing an official history of the Washington Navy-Yard. The report will present historical facts of interest, as the Washington Navy-Yard was a prominent point in the war of 1812, especially when the Capitol was captured. The first part of the report has been completed and sent in.

The Enlistment of Minors. An important decision touching the er listment of minors in the army has bee listment of minors in the army has been rendered by the United States Circuit Court for the Eastern District of Michigan. The decision says: "A minor soldier of the Army in cooffnement under a charge of desertion will not be discharged from military service by the Court until he has been released from such confinement. A minor's contract of enlistment is not void, but voidable."

THE INTERSTATE COMMISSION.

A Decision Regarding the Fixing of Differing Rates. The Interstate Commerce Commission, through Commissioner Morrison, rendered a decision to-day in the case of the North-western Iowa Grain and Stock Shippers' Association vs. the Chicago and North-

Association vs. the Chicago and Northwestern Railway Company.

It states that a railroad company making different rates for the same distances on different branches of its road must justify them by showing that there is a difference in the cost of carrying on the different branches.

The company by long maintaining a rate without the presence of competition of other than equal terms makes or gives evidence that such rate is not too low. A company which has two routes between points cannot lawfully charge more for a shorter than a longer distance on either.

A road can carry freight from points on its main line cheaper than another road can carry over a branch road with separate equipment to and over its main line, and where one of such branch lines must carry in competition with another road from its main line stations the rate on that branch establishes no criterion for the branches not so situated.

The company gave special rates to corn shippers in Nebraska to a point in Illinois by means of which the corn reached the seabord at low through rates; when the company denied, as it did, such special advantages to corn shippers in lowa, it gave unlawful preference to Nebraska shippers.

THE SUCCESSION.

Political Gossipers Already Discussing the Supreme Court Vacancy.

Speculation on the possibility of suc-cession in event of Justice Matthews' death has been quietly indulged in for two condition of Mr. Matthews was known condition of Mr. Matthews was known.

It is generally believed that President Harrison will appoint Walter Q. Gresham U. S. Circuit Judge to the place left vacant by Justice Matthews' death. Judge Gresham was one of General Harrison's opponents before the Chicago Convention. He is an Indiana man, although for several years past he has been a resident of Illinois.

His constanton as a largest is of the high.

His reputation as a jurist is of the highest. If Judge Gresham should be promoted to the Supreme Bench, Judge Woods of the United States District Court of Indiana will probably take his place on the Circuit, and either John B. Elam, President Hartson, Gress Law, Partson, dent Harrison's former law partner, or Judge John M. Butler of Indianapolis will

He was so surprised that the candy almost choked him. But it was all over. He had lost the benefit of his reserve fire and wasted his candy.

GONE TO HIS REST

DEATH OF JUSTICE STANLEY

The Event a Great Surprise to His Relatives and His Physicians-Cheerful to the Last, He Had Hopes of His Recovery-Sketch of His Life-

Justice Stanley Matthews of the Suprem Court of the United States died at his resimorning. His death was a surprise, not only to his family and friends, but to his physicians, who have for the past three weeks given out the most encouraging reports. Although he had been ill for over a year, and confined to his apartments since last September, he was always in the most cheerful mood, and only last week talked confidently of going out driving in few days. Every day last week he sat at the front window of his room in an easy chair. His appetite was good, and the only weakness.

Yesterday morning he spoke again of this weakness and ate scarcely any breakfast, though he had slept well on the previous night. Early in the afternoon he was attacked with severe pains in the abdomen and back and sank rapidly. His physicians, Dr. W. W. Johnston and Dr. Nathan Lincoln, were sent for and applied remedies, but they could do nothing. Several times he lost consciousness, but railied, and it was thought early this morning that he would recover from the attack. He had another relapse, however, about 4 o'clock, and did not regain consciousness until just before his death.

Dr. Johnston was with him all night. His wife and three children were at his bediside constantly. He has a married son and daughter, both living in Cincinnati. They were both telegraphed for immediately after his relapse, and are now on their way to the city, and expect to arrive this evening.

The arrangements for the funeral are at present entirely provisional. The funeral will take place from the late residence of the deceased Justice on Monday at 10 o'clock. From the house the remains will be carried to the Baltimore and Ohio Depot, where a special train will convey them to his former home in Cincinnati. The train will leave the city at 3 o'clock. The interment will be at Spring Grove Cemetery at 2 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon.

He entered the Union Army in 1861 as lieutenant-colonel, but resigned his commission in 1863 to become Judge of the Superior Court of Cincinnati. He was a Presidential elector on the Lincoin-Johnson ticket in 1864; and on the Grant-Colfax ticket in 1868. He was defeated as Republican candidate for Congress in 1876 by 75 votes, and in the next year was one of the counsel before the celebrated Electoral Commission, opening the argument in behalf of the Republican electors of Florida, and making the principal argument in the Oregon case. In March, 1877, he was elected U. S. Senator in place of John Sherman, who resigned. In 1881 he was appointed by President Garfield Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court.

Secretary Windom also expressed the earnest wish that Mr. Windrim would accept the position, as he was an excellent man, splendfully equipped for the office, and would undoubtedly do it credit. The Secretary stated that Mr. Windrim was in no sense an applicant for the office.

Mr. Windrim was seen at his residence, 817 North Broad street, last night, and asked if he would accept the position.

"I really don't know enough about this to say anything definite," answered Mr. Windrim, "The papers say it is fixed, but I have received no official notice to that effect. As to whether I will accept the position, why, I must say that it has not been offered to me in a way that I can answer yes or no to that question."

Mr. Windrim is of Scotch-Irish parentage, and was born in this city July 4, 1840. He was educated in Girard College, from which he graduated in 1856. Having a desire to be an architect and a natural talent for the occupation, he entered the office of John Notman, under whose instructions he remained for three years. He went to work with Thomas Bateman, a carpenter and builder, of West Chester, and the experience he gained in this out-door work was of inestimable value. He subsequently returned to Philadelphia and re-entered the service of Mr. Notman.

of Timothy and Peter Barrett, two of his munderers.

Only 150 people were admitted to the jail, including sheriffs, physicians, the priests and newspaper reporters. The traps and ropes had been carefully prepared and tested.

Promptly at 11 o'clock the sheriff and his deputies entered the condemned men's cells and quickly prepared them for the gallows. There were no speeches on the scaffold, and everything was done as expeditiously as possible. There was not a hitch, and the two men met their doom unflinchingly. Tim fell like a log, but there was a noticeable twitching in Pete's body. Death soon ensued for both.

The crime for which Timothy and Peter Barrett suffered death to-day was the nurder of driver Thomas Tollefson of the Cedar avenue street-car line, July 20, 1887. About 12:30 o'clock on the night mentioned, when the car was in the 'suburbs on its last trip, three men boarded, and holding revolvers to the head of Driver Tollefson, demanded the cash box. He refused to give it up and was shot twice and killed. The murderers then fled, carrying the box with them. They secured but $20. AH, MR. CO'BURN!

LEADER AN ANNEXATIONIST.

That is, He Has an American Wife and a Charming Canadian-American Daughter—The Young Lady Does Not Agree With Her Father in

There was a striking scene in the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada. It was last Tuesday. Hon. Mr. Cockburn, leader of the Conservatives, was on his feet. He was making a great speech in opposition to the commercial union of Canada and the States. The Conservatives cheered; the Liberals interrupted; the galleries made an abundance of noise. It was a field day in the Budget discussion. Mr.

Cockburn was at his best. He ridiculed the idea of a union of any sort with the aristocracy lived only for boodle; he de clared that commercial meant political union; he said the Monroe doctrine would never be realized; he flourished a cartoon in bad taste in some comic American paper and implied that it represented the real sentiment here; he declared that Canada must "work out her destiny;" he was earnest, loyal, and reasonably eloquent. It was a great day for Mr. Cockburn, Conservative leader.

Ah, Mr. Cockburn, Conservative leader! Eloquent against commerdial union, he has himself made with America a closer union. Opposed to annexation, he is himself already annexed. Protesting against a united Anglo-Saxon family on this continent, he has himself a family both Canadian and American. Mr. Cockburn, Conservative leader, must laugh to himself as he eats his dinner and smokes his eigar later, and leans back and speculates after one of his great efforts.

Here is a revelation.

However extremely Canadian Mr. Cockburn may be himself his wife and her family are as extremely American.

One of the prettlest girls that graced Washington society last season was Miss Cockburn, the daughter of the Conservative member for Toronto.

She came here last December, and was first seen at Mrs. Justice Field's reception, at which she assisted.

Physically, Miss Cockburn is a tall, blonde, typical English girl in appearance, a trifle taller than the average, with a more graceful figure than bread-and-butter Misses (for Miss Cockburn is just passed her seventeenth birthday) usually have. Her abundant light brown hair is aimost golden in its yellowness, and her eyes are as blue as a forget-me-not's petal. The accompanying picture does not do her justice.

Politically, she differs from her distinguished father, for she is as little ultra-Ah, Mr. Cockburn, Conservative leader Telliteally, she differs from her distinguished father, for she is as little ultra-Canadian as he is American. She hasn't been in Canada for six years.

Though she fully realizes how much mistaken her father is in his opposition to commercial union with this country, she does not blame him so much as one might expect of so thorough an American.

"Papa, you know," she said yesterdisy, "is leader of the Conservatives, and, of course, he has to take the side of the Government. I don't think that his really so much of an anti-American as he's speech makes him seem. Why, my mamma and all her family are the staunchest kind of Americans, and papa and mamma were married in Louisville.

"But the Government seems to be opposed to anything that would bring the Canadian people and American people closer together, and so papa made his anti-American speech. He has always been in Parliament, and I expect he always will be a Conservative.

Parliament, and I expect he always will be a Conservative.

"I would try to convert him," continued the charming Canadian girl, with a laugh, "because I don't agree with his views at all, but I don't believe it would be possible. As long as the Government is opposed to this country, papa will be too, that is politically. Why last winter, when papa was here—last December it was—be didn't call on any of the Cabinet or other officials.

"He had lots of friends here in Washingon, but so long as the countries were involved in a dispute over the fisheries, it, of course, wouldn't do for him to call upon anybody connected with the American Government. But, personally, he has a great many friends here, and he lets me stay with grandpa, so I guess he can't be such a very flerce enemy to the United States after all.

"I intend to stay here in Washington up.

such a very flerce enemy to the United States after all.

"I intend to stay here in Washington until next autumn. I think it is the most pleasant place I ever lived in. It reminds me so much of Paris.

"Papa will probably come down here for me when Parliament is over. I want to go to White Sulphur for the summer, and I would like to have papa go with me. I think the United States, and Washington just delightful."

Miss Cockburn has been in Europe for some six years, until she came here last winter. Despite her father's violent opposition, as illustrated by his speech, to the United States, his pretty daughter has been a frequent visitor at Mrs. Whitney's and made her debut there.

She talks interestingly of Canadian court customs, but she sloes not say "Her Majesty" or "Her Highness" when she speaks of the Queen. She says "the Queen" just as any one who was not one of Her Majesty's subjects would, and one might think that if Miss Cockburn was an impudent boy instead of a clever young lady she would call the Queen "her joblots," so little of awe and veneration is there in the way she speaks of her severeign.

Miss Cockburn's father met his American and veneration is there in the way she speaks of her sovereign.

Miss Cockburn's father met his American wife in Canada. She was Miss Mary Zane of Kentucky. At the breaking out of the war the Zanes, a wealthy Kentucky family, went to Canada. There Mr. Cockburn met and fell in love with the American girl. After the war was over the Zanes returned to Louisville, Ky., and soon after the conservative Canadian, not so conservative then as now, though, followed them and married Miss Zane.

Miss Cockburn has been spending the season with her grandmother, Mrs. Hampton Zane, out on Nineteenth street, and has been very popular in society. She only finished her education in Europe last year, having studied in Paris a large part of the time. She speaks French, Italian and German easily and besides is a clever

As ultra anti-American as Miss Cockburn's father is, Canadians would say that she is as elever a young lady as there is in Wash-ington society or anywhere else.

Scuator Said to Have Received $12,000 for His Vote.

St. Paul, Minn., March 22.—In the State Senate Wednesday the bill confirming the title of the Duluth and Winniper Railroad Company to land valued at $0,000. 000 in North Minnesota was defeated by a vote of 26 to 16. The bill was antagonized the Manitoba Railroad Company and the Senate Chamber swarmed with lobby-ists all day. At the opening of the Senate yesterday Senator Pope made the following statement: "A member of the Lower House stated in a hotel lobby last night that the Senator from his district had received $12,000 for his vote against the bill. "A Senator who voted for the bill told me that he was offered $20,000 to absent himself and lose his vote. The question seems to me to be not 'are there any here who sell their votes,' but 'are there any here who do not sell their votes.' If such there be, and I claim to be one, it is the duty to the past with its memories, to the present, to the State we serve, to the constituents we represent and to ourselves that these rumors be investigated and the truth be brought to light." yesterday Senator Pope made the following

A MANIAC'S DESPERATION.

Out His Brains. CINCINNATI, March 22.-Jas. R. Crook, a vealthy coal merchant of Altamont, Ky., this morning made repeated attempts to butt his brains out in his room, in the Palace Hotel, this city, and is now dying from the injuries inflicted upon himself. He also attempted to drag his wife with him, exclaiming: "We will die to gether!" No less than seven fractures of the skull were made in his desperate attempt, the marble mantelpiece being broken into fragments. His wife escaped injury. The cause of the act is mental depression, brought on by business worry.

NEW YORK, March 22,-Russell Harrison arrived in town from Washington this morning. His business here is in connection with the recent purchase of Frank Leslie's Illustrated Newspaper. He is said to have an interest in the enterprise.

With regard to the rumors that he would be a candidate for the United States Senate from the new State of Montana Mr. Harri-son said that he was more interested in business than in politics at present. He declined, however, to discuss his business

RECORDS BURNED

THE CITY HALL AT DOVER, N. H.,

Other Buildings Narrowly Escape De struction_Several Firemen Injured by Falling Bricks and Timbers-Damage Caused in Other Places

DOVER, N. H., March 22.-The City Hall building here was totally destroyed by fire, which was discovered near the furnace under the court-room at 2:30 s. m. to-day. The building contained the police station, city clerk's office, county commissioner's office, registries of probate and of deeds, police court room, aldermanic and council chambers, offices of the board of assessors, board of supervisors and city messenger, high school cadets and the City Opera House, the last with a scating capacity of

The roof and steeple of the Belkmap Church were burned and the interior of the edifice was considerably damaged by water. St. Thomas' Episcopal Church took fire several times, but was saved with small damage. Gildden's block was considerably damaged by water, as were also the stores of J. R. Higgins and John Griffin. The City Hall was built in 1867, and, with improvements, cost $71,000.

Several firemen were injured. Hugh Hanna was struck in the head by falling bricks and had a check bone broken and was otherwise bruised; James Varney was badly burned by a large piece of blazing timber striking him on the neck and pinning him to the ground; David Hammond, foreman of the hook and ladder truck, had a foot ernshed by falling timbers, and Samuel Abbott will probably lose an eye, having been struck in the face by a powerful stream of water.

The damage to the city and county records, which were stored in the vaults, cannot be learned as yet, as they are buried in the ruins.

Fire in a New York Town. block known as Young's Hall, at Candor, was burned this morning. Loss, $15,000; insurance, $9,000. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. The building was discovered to be on fire yesterlay, but the flames were quickly extinguished. Papers saturated with oil were found scattered around the upper hallway. This morning the flames were first discovered under the stairway on the upper floor. A Liveryman Burned to Death.

stable belonging to Gerdon & Clark at Newport, Neb., burned about midnight. J. B. Gordon, one of the proprietors, and eight horses perished in the flames. The fire is apposed to have been incendiary. A Rake Shop Burned. LEBANON, N. H., March 22.—M. L.

Stearns' snath and rake shop was burned last night. Loss, $15,000; insurance, $10,000. HOPEFUL HARTINGTON. He Has Rosy-Colored Views of His Party's Prospects.

LONDON, March 29.—Lord Hartington made an address to-day at a council of Liberal Unionists. He said it was hopeless for the Home Rulers to attempt to reverse the judgment of the last general election. In referring to the strength of the Unionists the speaker said: "Our opponents' raneor against us has entirely dispelled the sugges-tion that the Unionists are decaying."

Presentation of Paintings. New York, March 22.-Mr. Erwin Davis has presented to the Metropolitan Museum of Art Bastian Le Page's painting, "Joan of Arc." and Manet's "Boy With a Sword" and "Feeding the Parrot." These paint-ings were sold at extravagant prices at Mr. Davis' recent painting sale, and it now appears that he bid them up himself so that he might present them to the Art Museum, as he has now done.
